

Bill Wight - Landscape Photographer

Bill has been a serious amateur landscape photographer for over fifty years. As a teenager, he was inspired by the work of Ansel Adams and later by Galen Rowell.

Bill licenses his landscape images world-wide through Getty Images and has had his photographs in several publications, including Popular Photography and Digital Photographer magazines and in several books.

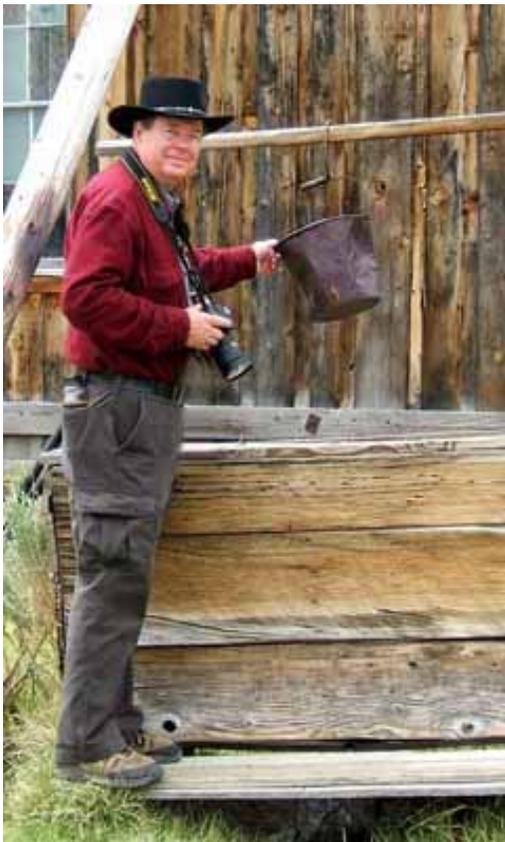

Bill is the vice president of the RC Photo Club and on the board of the Photochromers Photography Club. He is a member of PSA.

For the last five years, Bill has been a projection photography critique judge for several local camera clubs and a judge for several on-line contests.

Until 2013, Bill owned and operated Mountain High Workshops where he taught landscape photography in the western US.

Bill currently shoots with a Nikon D800, D800E, Nikon D3s and uses a variety of Nikon glass. He uses Photoshop CC 2015 and the NIK suite for his post-processing.

Bill's Flickr photostream: www.flickr.com/photos/wwwca

Not ready to kick this bucket.